A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

By Joan O'Byrne

February has been a crazy month, and I don't know where to start. I am so thankful for being busy in my retirement with something I love to do!

First of all, I want to thank Judith Heim and her committee members for organizing such a successful Juried Show. The reception was amazing. Personally, I didn't get to really see and appreciate the artwork as much as I wanted, so I plan to go back. Kudos to Judy Snell who won First Place award and has sold her painting.

And thanks to Lynn Kerr who, in a very short time, managed to get that wonderful Non-Juried Show at Evergreen Hospital, and to those who cheerfully schlepped artwork to and from Evergreen. Give yourselves a pat on the back. Lynn also procured sponsors for the Juried Show, and managed to get Daniel Smith back on the list!

Since January we have 12 new members. I am looking forward to them being involved and bringing new and fresh ideas to our organization. I am hoping they will become Juried Members and get all the advantages that go with that. Any one of us is happy to be a "sponsor," which means to help you through the jurying process. For some of you this is no big deal, but others may need a little help with what pieces to submit. So, if any of you want to be on the list for October, contact me and I will set you up with two sponsors.

By now all of you know we cancelled our General Meeting for March 24. I am hopeful that by April this virus will be contained, or have "burned itself out," but I will continue to follow the guidelines of the Public Health Dept.

Please stay well.

DEMONSTRATION

By MARY ANDERSON

Submitted by Janci Mannington

For the February Seattle CoArts meeting, Mary Anderson did a demo with watercolor paints of Koi in water. She started with Fabriano 300 lb. watercolor paper with a very light, non-detailed pencil drawing of the three fish. She had taped the four sides of the paper edge so that her artwork would have nice clean edges when she removed the tape after completing the painting. Mary painted from a photo reference, but changed the angle of the three fish and added some lily pads for a better composition. Her first step was to make a very light wash over the fish's bodies using Puro Orange semi transparent and quinacridone gold with a saturated #14 Kolinsky sable brush. She then added some shadows to the fish by combining indigo and her orange, making sure to render the outside lines of the fish a bit wavy to suggest that the fish are underwater.

Next, Mary added lily pads at the top edges of the painting using Prussian green, phthalo yellow green, and sap green. She painted the entire leaf a light color and then added the dark details. After the fish bodies were dry, she dotted in the orange spots on the fish using a mixture of puro orange and quinacridone red. Mary worked with a long "test strip" of watercolor paper where she tried out her mixtures before committing the paint to the actual painting. Once the fish were looking good, Mary started on the background of water using indanthrone, phthalo turquoise, phthalo blue and sometimes some green. She loaded up several brushes with these colors and then used them alternately to create an interesting water pattern where the colors bled into each other. Sometimes she held the paper up to let the colors of the water run together a bit. Mary recommended resting one's brush hand on the table so that your hand is steadier when going around the fish shapes.

Finally, Mary put in some finishing fin details and the eyes, and her vibrant creation was finished in just about an hour.

Tis Huberth (4/16/1935-3/5/2020) discovered in November that she had Stage 4 Lung Cancer. For two months she was given the latest protocol treatments. In January she developed pneumonia, and was not able to fight both diseases. She passed away on March 5. Her son, Robert, shared a sweet story; The day before she died, she had a thirst for a Margarita, and they were able to find the ingredients. She enjoyed every last drop with a huge smile on her lips. Doesn't that sound just like her?

Tis requested that there be no memorial or funeral service, however she agreed to an Open House in late spring. Future plans will be shared once arranged.

For many of us, a big loss too, will be Tis' spring/fall workshops, called ARTescape. She was in her element teaching what she loved beyond words. We cherish those memories, and the friendships that she gave us all. She may be gone, but she will never be forgotten.

In lieu of flowers and cards, please make any donations, in her name, to: www.BestFriends.org, an organization in Utah, that has a marvelous reputation for rescuing and saving animals.

The address for Robert and wife, Tracey is: PO Box 15444 Seattle, WA 98115-0444.

FALL PAINT-OUT, SAMISH ISLAND-Sept 6-11

Paula Parks will begin Fall Paint-Out Sign Ups at the April 28, Seattle Co-Arts Meeting. In order to reserve a spot, you will need to give Paula a non-refundable check for $50.00 made out to Seattle Co-Arts. The remainder is due no later than July 15.

The costs are slightly higher than last year.

Standard cabin: members $375, nonmember $425.

Deluxe cabin Shared: members $405, nonmember $455.

Single (non-shared) deluxe cabin: members $425, nonmember $475.

(Standard cabins, you walk to the bathroom & shower building and deluxe cabins have in building bathroom & shower.)

NOTE: This cost includes cabin, 15 fabulous meals, table space in the lodge for painting, the best painting companions ever, and the most beautiful grounds to wander and views to paint.

The surrounding countryside for plein-air painting is fantastic. In the evenings, you can play games, paint/create, watch a movie or go to bed early. Basically, this is a fantastic week of eating, sleeping and creating to your heart's content. This is also one of the best opportunities for really getting to know your fellow Seattle Co-Arts members.

This Fall Paint-Out Week is a great opportunity to spend dedicated time to your creative self, time to restore and build up your energies, time to devote creating new work or finishing that project. Come paint with us!

Fall Paint-Out Chair: Paula Parks, paula_parks@msn.com, (email is the best way to communicate with me) or 206-546-0964.
